HONORED EWING CITIZEN DEAD

Ewing, Va., Sept. 8.—J. W. Blessing, 68, died at his home here yesterday at about 12 o'clock. He had been in failing health for two years, but had been working steadily until a month ago, when he became worse. He has been confined to his bed since that time. Although ill, he seemed to be holding his own in strength, and the end came suddenly.

Mr. Blessing had been in the employ of the L. & N. Railway Co. at Ewing for 33 years. He was an honored citizen and numbered his friends by those who knew him.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock Sunday morning and burial will be made in the Richmond cemetery. He is survived by his wife, six sons, James of Middlesboro; Richmond and Walter, of Pineville; Ben, Nat and Bill, of Ewing; and one daughter, Mrs. Jessie Smith, of Ewing.

TAX PAYMENTS
DUE NEXT WEEK*City Tax Books Now Ready—2,442
Persons to Pay Poll and Property Tax

City tax payments will be received next week, according to Frank Fearn, city collector. The new tax books are now ready and notices are being sent out to this effect to some of the taxpayers.

There are 2,442 taxpayers in Middlesboro, including those subject to poll tax. Many persons who own no realty are subject to personalty tax. It is partly for this reason that these are being notified by card; many persons do not understand that they are required to pay this form of tax.

The city tax assessment for this year is about five and one-half million dollars. Names of all taxpayers and the amount each owes has been posted by Mr. Fearn in the tax books.

ROSE HILL OIL PROSPECTS GOOD*Quantity of High-Grade Oil Found in Sand at Depth of 123 Feet.

With the finding of an oil sand at a depth of 123 feet at the second Rose Hill oil well prospects for a real oil field there are now very favorable. The oil sand is 17 feet in thickness and is rich with oil. The tools were lost in the well below the sand and further progress in drilling is impossible. The hole filled with oil from 600 to 800 feet in depth after the oil sand was tapped.

Preparations are now being made to "shoot" the well Wednesday. One hundred and twenty quarts of nitro-glycerine have been ordered from Winchester for the purpose and are now being brought to Middlesboro in an automobile. J. H. Walker says that all people who care to are invited to witness the shooting of the well, particularly those who have stock in the enterprise.

After the sand has been torn by the explosives, preparations will be made to pump out the oil. No further drilling at this well will be made. The crude oil obtained from it is of the very highest quality, being that grade from which machine oil is made.

Preparations for digging another well next week are being made. The company is fairly well equipped with machinery for the work and a large tank for storing the oil is available.

Mr. Walker says that they already have a proven oil field, that it will be a paying proposition if several wells having a capacity of a few barrels of oil daily result from the work.

He has been patiently working at the enterprise for months and it now appears as if his efforts will be richly rewarded.

"The development of a real oil field at Rose Hill will mean more for Middlesboro and vicinity than all the coal interests here," is the opinion of Mr. Walker.

SHOT BY SMALL SON, MAY MAN MAY LOSE ARM

Anna Pike, dryman of Colmar road, was accidentally shot in the arm, by his small son, James, at his home this morning. The wounded man was brought to the Broshier-Brunnett hospital early this afternoon. It is feared that he will lose a portion of his arm.

According to the reports, Mr. Pike had seen his shotgun in its usual place, loaded. The boy, who is about three or four years old picked it up and, without realizing what he was doing, discharged it. The heavy charge of shot almost severed the man's arm a few inches below the elbow.

MIDDLESBORO'S RELIEF QUOTA
SENT IN TODAY*Extreme Emergency Suffering Jap
Merited Tapping Community
Chest Emergency Fund
For Red Cross.*MIDDLESBORO AMONG FIRST
TO RESPOND TO THE CALL

Cries of the suffering Japanese, impoverished and rendered homeless by one of the greatest catastrophes the world has ever known, have not been unheard in Middlesboro. Our quota which was fixed at $200 yesterday was drawn from the Emergency Fund of the Community Chest and wired to Red Cross headquarters early this morning. Middlesboro is one of the first towns to send in its quota.

In view of the fact that the Red Cross was designated by President Coolidge as the agency through which the relief work would be conducted, it was decided by the board of directors of the Community Chest that this organization should furnish the relief funds from here.

It was a severe strain on the Emergency Fund to raise the amount of money and careful calculations were made before it was decided that this amount could be spared.

Several private donations were made yesterday for relief work but these were definitely decided that the Community Chest should bear the expense of our part of the relief work.

A splendid example of the thorough efficiency of the Community Chest is afforded in this case. It shows that the organization is not only able to handle all our regular local relief expenses but is also able to care for extreme emergencies, and all without organizing and carrying out public drives for the money.

The manner in which the Japanese Relief situation has been handled here will, it is believed, be satisfactory to all. Though most citizens were willing to contribute to the cause, the way the expense has been met has not been a direct expense to any one.

The Emergency Fund of the Community Chest is being zealously guarded by the executives and directors of the organization. The present case will perhaps not be paralleled again and it was deemed one which merited an interest in the fund.

Disastrous Earthquake Hits Japan About Every 50 Years

Americans arriving in Japan eagerly await an earthquake shock; it is one of the unusual things that Japan has to offer. Having experienced a real shock, the average American is satisfied and if he could have his wish there would be no more earthquakes while he is so far away from home.

Quakes are recorded almost daily by seismographs but most of them are not perceptible. One may be in Japan for a week or ten days before his is disturbed by feeling the ground move under him or by seeing the pictures on the wall swing to and fro or by being awakened in the night when his bed starts jumping around like a kitten at play. When that time comes one is frightened worse than ever before in his life and at the same time is seasick. Nothing is more terrifying, for there is no escape; all that one can do is say "shikata za nai" (there is no help) which is the stereotyped phrase, and hope for the best. The Japanese, with their combination of Stoicism and Epicureanism, may feel severe, but the American with his belief that things can be helped feels miserable.

Among the hundreds of "rules for Americans in Japan" is the caution to open the outside door and stand in the doorway during the earthquake. This is to prevent the door from being jammed, thus cutting off escape. The rule may be good, but generally a quake is over before one can reach a door and if you may live in a house with a tile roof you may reach the door just in time to be struck by a tile that has broken loose and is falling to the ground.

The American never gets entirely over the uncertain feeling under his belt when the earth starts to rock but he soon pays less attention. History shows that a severe earthquake, destroying much property and thousands of lives hits Japan once every fifty years and the present quake is six years past due. Japan has had these disturbances from time immemorial and the geologist says that Japan must one day be again or almost to be.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 7.—(Associated Press)—Judge Charles Harding, the chairman of the Democratic State and Central Executive committee, today announced that Judge Samuel M. Wilson, of Lexington, had withdrawn as a candidate to succeed the late J. Campbell Cantrell as nominee for governor. Harrell announced that the meeting to select Cantrell's successor this afternoon would be open to the public. Bailey P. Woolton, committeeman from the 10 District, who has been a supporter of Wilson, in a statement today said that the meeting there would be a few scattering complimentary votes for various candidates other than Congressman Fields. At the Democratic headquarters indications were that all committee members seemed to know Fields has already opened headquarters at a local hotel.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 8.—Members of the Democratic state committee here J. Campbell Cantrell, democratic candidate to name the successor to the late today for governor. The state executive committee is scheduled to hold a session at 2 o'clock for that purpose while the state Central Committee will meet tonight to consider the adoption of a platform. Congressman Fields of the Ninth District continued to be the most prominently mentioned today as the nominee, an upset, however, is regarded as not improbable.

E. END WORK TO BE DONE FIRST*Work Will Begin There Monday—
Property Owners Generally
Well Pleased.

"All forces will be centered on the East End construction work," an official of the Humbird Construction company stated this morning. Actual work there which was planned for yesterday, will begin Monday, he said. There seems to be a comparatively small amount of dissatisfaction from property owners in the East End section over the prospective street improvement. Some of them have expressed themselves as being anxious for the work to begin.

The net cost to the property owners there will be only $8 per linear foot, nearly six dollars lower than the cost of the paving recently completed on Cumberland avenue.

The construction company has been working on Twenty-fourth street and Gloucester avenue recently, concrete bases having been made. Preparations were made to begin the laying of asphalt on Ashbury today, but the work was prevented on account of the rain.

BALL PARK FENCE
TO BE BUILT SOON*Athletic Body Community Chest Decides on This at Meeting—Grandstand Deferred.

Work of building a fence around the East End ball park, recently acquired by the city for public athletic purposes, will begin next week, in all probability. This was decided at a meeting of the athletic committee of the Community Chest, which took place at the central school building last night.

The grandstand will not be rebuilt this year, according to Sept. J. W. Bradner, but the fence will be played there early in the school term.

The grandstand is in a run-down condition but it can be used for some time yet. Its seating capacity is large enough, it is thought, to accommodate patrons of school athletic contests.

CONTRACTING CO. CLEANS NEW STREETS THIS MORNING

Middlesboro's need of a street cleaning system was made very emphatic this morning when the Humbird Construction company spent several hours with a large crew of men in cleaning the newly paved section of Cumberland avenue.

Dirt, leaves, papers and all kinds of trash which had accumulated on the street had been heaped in piles at certain places by the rain of last night. Several loads of this was shoveled into trucks and hauled off by the contractor's crew this morning.

Let a man be never so ungrateful or inhuman, he shall never destroy

PUBLIC INTEREST
IN CITY AFFAIRS

There has been a great deal of criticism of city affairs as managed by the mayor and council of Middlesboro.
Whether or not any of it is justified is uncertain but it is safe to say that not many citizens take sufficient interest in the actions of the governing body to learn whether or not there are any grounds for complaint.

City council meetings are held twice each month. The meetings are in no sense secret; indeed, members of the public are invited at all times to be present at the sessions where problems that should be of interest to all people living in Middlesboro are discussed. Furthermore, they are requested to make suggestions or constructive criticism at any time, either at the meetings or in private to the administrative board.

Our observations have been that, unless local men are directly affected by matters, for instance, the proposition of making a street along their property, they do not attend the meetings. The fact that paying is to be done in some other section of town or that action on other matters which will affect the city in general is to be taken does not seem to interest them.

For the information of that large class of local people who think that all civic financial business is transacted with profound secrecy, that there is no way whereby the public can know definitely of the receipts and expenditures of the city, we will here state that complete financial reports are made each month. The disposition of every cent that comes into the city treasury is indicated in these itemized reports.

After all, we have a government by the people here as in other parts of the country and the city council does not set itself up as an autocratic body trying to force upon the people things that they do not want. It is the duty of every citizen to offer suggestions and advice to members of the council when the occasion seems to warrant it.

EARTHQUAKE

Earthquake, fire and then untold suffering; Japan has again been visited by the dreaded catastrophes that has menaced the little island Empire from time immemorial. Untold thousands have perished and more than tens of millions remain to suffer.

In all probability the loss of life among Americans and other foreigners is small; we hope the reports that a number are dead are untrue. Our government will rush aid to the stricken Americans and their privation will be of short duration. Everything will be done by the different nations to care for their own people who are in Japan.

What of the Japanese?
The better classes of the natives will go ahead and rebuild and then resume business. But thousands will be left homeless, without resources and perhaps separated from their families.
They will be exposed to a cruel winter and food will be scarce. It is the

LETTER FROM BEATRICE GRIM-SHAW TO LESLIE GREEN
CUTTY

I know you were surprised, Leslie,
dear, when you found I was not going to be married right away even after I had written to you and explained in detail all about the situation. You see, Dick had a chance to go out to be in the business end of meeting pictures in Hollywood at a very large salary and a promise that if he made good in a year he would be drawing down a fabulous amount of money. At least it seemed fabulous to him and me.

Dick did not seem to think it was unreasonable to put off our wedding.
I could see that like most American young men, his ambitions were strange or then his emotions. It was I constantly who insisted that the marriage should be postponed. I knew that if I had even raised an eyebrow Dick would have turned down the proposition in a minute, but you see, Leslie dear, I was quite sure that if I could I had to give up this opportunity he would never be satisfied with any other position which might be offered to him, so I made him think that I was the one who was ambitious. I told him I wanted money and position, while all the while, Leslie dear, you know that I have always said I would be quite satisfied with a little salary, my home and a husband who was getting enough money for me to live simply and lay aside a little for a rainy day.

However, I guess it is all to re-bore. Dick has written me since he arrived in Hollywood and he says that the little moving picture town is not as black as it has been painted. In fact, he intimates that the only time it is steel gray is when the fog comes up from the sea in the early morning or late at night and covers everything with draperies and streams of the softest and most delicate chiffon velvet.

Until then I am your loving friend,
Doe.

NO. 3—PENNY PRAIRIE DOG ESCAPES

"That's Penny Prairie Dog," answered Mister Gallop.

One day Nancy and Nick and Mister Gallop, the cowboy fairy, were riding across the prairie just to see what they could see.

Suddenly they heard a "Cuck! Cuck!
Cuck!" half-way between a bark and speak.

"Oh, look," cried Nancy, almost falling from her horse in her excitement.
"What's that?"

"That's Penny Prairie Dog," answered Mister Gallop, looking down at the funny little creature sitting straight up like a kangaroo on his hind legs. Every time he barked he jerked his tail which made him look like a wand-up toy. "He's keeping watch outside his house," went on Mister Gallop. "When he makes that noise he's telling his family that strangers are coming and to look out."

"Well, we won't hurt him," said Nick. "Look, there are a lot of prairie dog houses and each one has a prairie dog on top. They've come out to see what is the matter."

"Yes, and careful that your pony doesn't step into one of the big holes they use for front doors," warned Mister Gallop. "Let Blackie and Snow go slowly or they'll trip and throw you off."

Suddenly there was a queer rattling noise almost under their feet and in less than it would take a star to fall
—the three ponies started off as tho they had been shot out of a gun.

"Whoa!" shouted Nick, pulling hard on his reins.

"Stop!" yelled Nancy, tugging with all her strength.

And Mister Gallop, the cowboy fairy, tried so hard to stop his pony that he stood straight up in his stirrups.

But not one of the three stopped until they were half a mile away.

"Why—what was wrong?" panted Nancy.

"That was Rip Rattle," said Mister Gallop. "He was after Penny Prairie Dog. We'd better go back and see if we can help him.—Tramp, I mean."

"Pretty soon whom should they meet but Penny himself an old wife and children, not looking a bit scared.

"How did you get away?" asked Nick.

"We have a secret back door," signaled Penny with a shake of his tail.
"When Mister Rattle came in the front door we went out the back way."

LETTER FROM BEATRICE GRIM-SHAW TO LESLIE GREEN
CUTTY

He seems to like the fact, as he likes everything else, in Hollywood.
He talks about the mountains, the forests, the trees and the sunshine which coming up from behind the caves and hills brushes aside the gray chiffon velvet of the fog, and turns the atmosphere to gold.

He also likes the women he has seen out there. Says he has never seen so many beautiful women, all the way from sixteen to sixty, in his life.
He says that all the beautiful young girls in the United States who can not money for transportation flock to the moving picture studios. I compare I would be just a little bit, a tiny wee bit, jealous if he did not say that the beauty he sees out there is the kind without soul, just as some of the most gorgeous flowers are without fragrance.

By the way, Leslie, when you first went to Albany, did you hear of a young woman by the name of Paula Perkins? Dick has met her. She is working in the same studio where he has his business office. I remember her very well. She was a very beautiful fashion model the first time I visited Albany. Possibly she may have left before you came.

Dick says this is one girl whom he has met out there who has beauty, spirituality and intellect. I am quite sure that Jack must have known about her, as I remember my first visit to Albany she was the most talked of girl in the city.

Just as soon as you are well enough to leave me, I am coming down to see you.

Until then I am your loving friend,
Doe.

Berton Braley's Poem

MARVELS

Ulysses trained about the world
And saw, he said, a lot of it:
But all the tales that he authored Concerned a tiny spot of it.
Today when travels what we seek
We take a car and ride about
And cover more ground in a week
Than all Ulysses had about.

Ulysses told convincingly
Of masters, gods, and goddesses;
Yet wonders that we daily see
Would fill a dozen Odysseys.
The simple-minded Greek folk,
With power thought of censuring,
Believed each word Ulysses spoke
About his long adventuring.

Yet had he told of radio Which undulates through space to us,
Of steam, or aeroplanes—which grow
So quickly commonplace to us,
The Greeks would probably have said
"We can't believe these fairy tales!"
The old man's crazy in the head,
For else he's telling fairy tales!"

In brief—a stranger world we view
And travel far and wide about,
Than that which old Ulysses knew,
Or chased he knew, and fled about!

Too Thick Headed.
An experiment was conducted at the London Zoo to discover if the mere voice of a man could penetrate the complexions of an elephant. By wireless an elephant was given commands by his favorite keeper, but paid no attention. When the keeper delivered the orders in person the animal obeyed without hesitation.

Fresh Peach Desserts

Although fresh peaches lack the valuable minerals found in apples they have a definite place among the tonic fruits. Use them often available in season.

A delicate trateness is brought out in cooking peaches which makes them peculiarly satisfactory combined with rice or tapioca. A pudding of this sort precludes the use of potatoes in a meal. Almost every woman likes to serve a meal once in a while that doesn't necessitate the preparation of potatoes.

Peach cobbler is simple and delicious. It should follow a light dinner or luncheon.

Peach Cobbler

Six peaches, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon butter. Batter—One cup flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar,
2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons butter, water to make soft dough. 1 egg (yolk). Meringue—One egg (white), 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 dessertspoon water.

Pare and slice peaches. Put in a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with sugar, dot with butter, add four tablespoons water and simmer, covered, while making the dough. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Rub in butter with tips of fingers. Last can be used in place of butter. In this case use milk instead of water. Beat egg yolk with one-quarter cup water or milk. Cut in to dry ingredients with a knife. Add more water or milk as necessary to make a soft dough.

Spread over peaches and bake 20 minutes in a hot oven. Turn upside down on a deep pie or pudding baking dish, cover with meringue and brown in a hot oven. The oven should be hot enough to color the meringue in four minutes.

To make meringue beat whites of egg with cold water on a platter with a wire whisk until stiff and dry. Beat in sugar. This dessert should be eaten warm.

Peach Snow Balls

Four peaches, 1-2 cup rice, 4 cups rice, 4 cups boiling salted water, 4 teaspoons red raspberry jam or preserves, sugar, butter.

Boil rice in water 20 minutes. Drain and dip in cold water. Drain. Pare peaches, cut in halves and remove stones. Fill the cavity made by the stone with jam or preserves. Cut four squares of cheese cloth, dip in hot water and spread with butter. Cover center with a layer of rice about one-half inch thick.

Fit the peaches together, making whole peaches, roll in sugar and put in the center of the rice. Pull up the corners of the cheese cloth and tie.
Put in steamer and steam for 20 minutes. Remove from squares of cloth and serve with sugar and cream or raspberry sauce.

To make the sauce use two-thirds cup of sirup from preserves, add one-third cup water. Bring to the boiling point and stir in two teaspoon corn starch moistened with cold water. Add one teaspoon butter and cook, stirring constantly until thick.

Peach Dumplings

One and one-half cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon lard or butter, milk or water to make a soft dough. Peaches, butter, sugar.

Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Rub in shortening with tips of fingers. Cut in liquid with knife.
Turn onto a floured moiling board and roll one-half inch thick. Cut with a large biscuit cutter. In the center of each round put half a pared and stoned peach. Fill cavity with sugar and a bit of butter. Pull the edges of the dough over the peach. Bake 20 minutes in a hot oven. Baste with one-half cup boiling water. 1 tablespoon butter and 2 tablespoons sugar.

Peach Custard

Four large peaches, 1 cup broken nut meats, 1 1-2 cups boiled custard.
Pare and slice peaches and put in serving dish. Sprinkle with nuts reserving a few for the top. Pour custard over nuts and peaches. Sprinkle with remaining nuts and put on ice to chill.

Custard

One and one-half cups milk, 2 eggs (yolks), 4 tablespoons sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon flour.

Beat yolks slightly with flour, sugar and salt. Beat milk and beat into egg mixture. Stir until sugar is

ARMY OFFICER'S NEW INVENTION MAY CONQUER THE LAW OF GRAVITATION

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—Some years ago a young army officer was wont to stand on the edge of a great desert out west. He was watching the skies intensely, for up there to him was one of nature's most mysterious mysteries soaring about.

An eagle or a buzzard would mount high and then in a series of graceful loops would rise and fall, and rise and fall—without apparent effort.

"Apparently," thought this young officer, "nature has endowed you with some kind of generator of Hertzian or wireless energy. It is possible that the feather points around the edges of your wings polarize a horizontal plane of influence," and in that way you laugh at gravity."

And then for years Edward S. Farrow, graduate of West Point, now retired, worked to invent a mechanical device that would overcome gravity, just like the eagle or the buzzard.

At he thinks he has done so!

He calls it a "condensing dynamo" and has made it the medium of some astonishing experiments.

For instance, the inventor placed a book on an ordinary pair of scales. On top of the book he placed his condensing dynamo. They tipped the scales at 18 ounces. To the dynamo he applied power. As the current set the wheels in the dynamo whirling, the indicator slowly receded until it stood at 15 ounces.

Apparently, three ounces in weight were lost. A law of nature to all appearances had been upset.

The idea behind the invention, which government experts are giving a thorough test, is based on the intensification of Hertzian, or wireless, waves. These waves are transformed into electro-magnetic forces. By doing that, then, a "parallel" force is created which attempts to nullify the "vertical" force of natural gravitation.

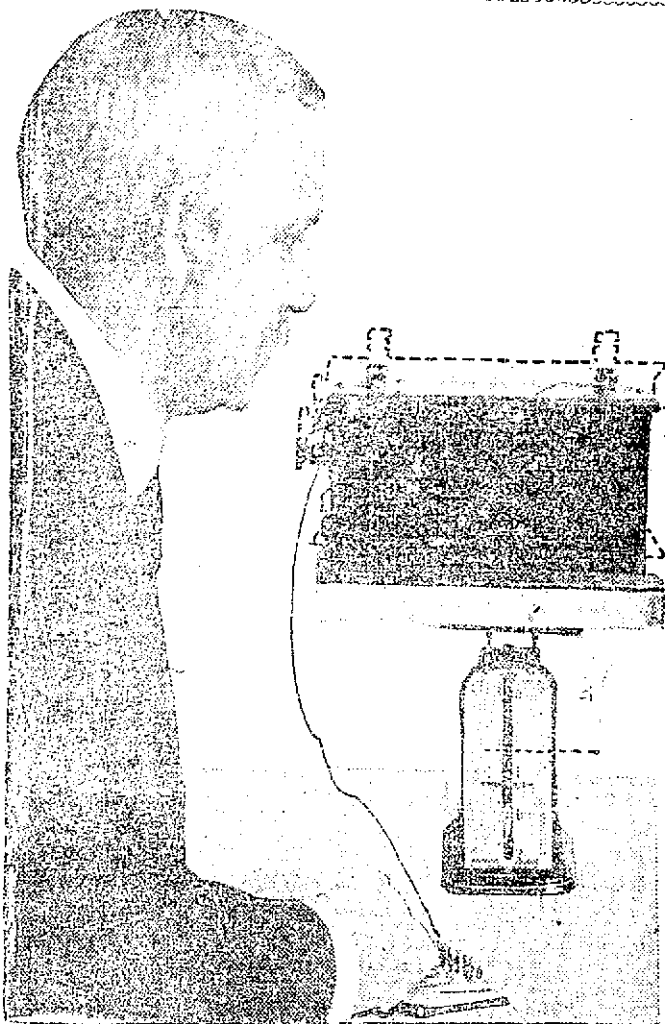

What would it mean to the world if Farrow's device should prove successful in a big way?

Aviation problems would vanish, for one thing. Placed on a plane, the air would be as safe as the ground.

And then consider the moving of heavy objects, like safes, etc. Put a condensing dynamo on it and handle it like an empty barrel. Just like that.

One might even allow his imagination to stretch and find solace in the thought that individual apparatus, capable of being carried by a person, would allow a human being to soar around through the air at will, like Frank T. Baum's hero in "The Magic Key."

Oh, anything is possible—if the new invention does what it is believed capable of doing—overcoming the greatest, the most baffling force of nature, gravity.

Says Music Makes The Insane Sane

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—"Insane people will experience momentary sanity when they hear melodies which appeal definitely to their own past or to their hopes."

Mossaye Boguslawski, Chicago pianist, after long experimentation into the psychological effect of music upon different peoples, comes to this opinion.

He wanted to know just what all people like to hear in the way of music.

"Melody and brevity are the keys American folk songs," such as "Old Black Joe," score an almost invariable popularity over southern oriental melodies when played before foreign children unfamiliar with either type.

a concert starts with these elements. "Jazz isn't essential to popularity."

"The cruelest materialist will respond to melody if the musician tries long enough."

"Finally, a serious student of music, with mind unshelved by great harmony, is the safest possible person in whom to confide one's purse or family."

It Pays to Sing.

THIS LITTLE WORLD

LONDON, Sept. 8.—Since August 12 London society has been in Scotland hunting grouse, which costs a pretty penny. In fact, grouse shooting is the most expensive sport in Great Britain. The charge is one guinea for each brace of live grouse. It's up to you to make dead grouse of them, if you and your guests can.

Thus, if a moor is estimated to contain 1000 brace of grouse, the rental is 1000 guineas, or something over $5,000 for a few weeks' hunting. Of course a house and keepers are thrown in, but by the time the food is paid for and the incidentals settled up, the best part of $10,000 has been consumed.

Then the flood starts. Every hunter remembers his more unfortunate brethren in town. The express cars from Scotland are filled with grouse. And the hotels and restaurants offer your grouse—very high both in price and quality—until you are sick of the very name.

There is a Coolidge yarn by way of Paris. When the president was governor of Massachusetts, a Boston reporter got the promise of an interview. He was told to bring his questions in writing. He did so—22 of them. Coolidge told him to come the next day.

At the appointed hour Coolidge came into his office and said: "Your 22 questions really boil down to three. To the first two the answer is 'Yes.' To the last, the answer is 'No.'"

"But, governor, won't you say more than that?" exclaimed the newspaper man against.

"What's the use? You've got enough for 3,000 words. Why should I say them?"

A quaint story comes from Lincoln, seat of the famous cathedral. The electric light plant of the place was overrun with mice. They invaded the transformers, twisted up the wires, even gnawed the rubber insulation off and bread was prepared and eaten at the mouth of the cave, after which the cave itself was explored.

This cave is well worth visiting. It is a vast amphitheatre about 500 feet in width and 400 feet in depth, with an arched opening 100 feet high, hothollowed out of the soft sandstone strata by the action of winds and the freezing and thawing of the water percolating thru the rock strata. The sand thus formed is many feet deep on the floor of the cave and of a great variety of white, red brown and shades of those colors.

After coming from the cave it was decided to explore the country at the foot of the mountain on the Kentucky side as far as Martins Fork. This was done with all the camp outfit and over a mountain trail, until the stream was reached, where the packs were taken from the shoulders and the noon meal was eaten. The return trip to the top of the mountain was made through the untrodden wilderness of a jungle of green briars, blackberry bushes, laurel, rhododendron, and locusts, and over cliffs of sandstone 20 to 60 feet high. The old camp ground was reached and supper eaten while darkness enshrouded the land.

The early morning hours of the next day were spent in resting and watching the rain clouds spill the water over the Powells Valley and the mountains to the North.

After the noon day meal was eaten at the mountain top spring the descent to Ewing was made much easier than the ascent was made three days previous.

Middlesboro was reached about five o'clock in the afternoon, which closed a very enjoyable and strenuous three-days' camping trip. This trip every one in Middlesboro should make, since Sand Cave is one of the greatest natural wonders in the Middlesboro district.

A cat with a good mousing record was obtained. She was successful until one night in hunting a particularly agile rodent, the cat came into contact with a live wire, got 6,000 volts and gave up the ghost. As a tribute to the faithful beast the plant manager had all the lights in the town put out for 15 seconds.

It may be a canard. Maybe not. But they claim that recently the steward of a British ship familiarized a bunch of very wet, or rather would-be wet, American passengers by his cruel parody on a well-known American song:

"Oh, yes, we have no Martinis. We have no Martinis today. No whisky, no sherry. No Manhattan with cherry. But all kinds of soft drinks. And say, We've got some nice lemon squash- es. And other mixtures and splashes. But, yes, we have no Martinis. We have no Martinis today!"

FELT TIRED, SO TIRED

Indiana Lady Says She Was Run-Down, Suffered With Her Back, Took Cardui, and Got Well.

Richmond, Ind.—"I thought I would write a line or so, to say that I owe my good health and strength to Cardui," says a letter from Mrs. Cora Courtney, 31 Railroad Street, this city.

"I was all run-down until my family thought they would lose me," writes Mrs. Courtney. "My husband coaxed me to take Cardui, so, to please him, I did, and will say I do not regret it, for I am able to do all my work and do my shopping."

"I have five children, four in school, my husband and a boarder to do for, and I do all my own work for all of us, and find time to play. We all praise Cardui. Every sick and run-down woman should take this wonderful medicine."

"I suffered with my back; a very weak feeling in my limbs."

"I felt hardly able to drag; just tired—so tired all the time."

"It was an effort for me to do anything, but Cardui helped me so I felt like a different woman."

If you are in a run-down physical condition, suffering as this Indiana lady says she did, give Cardui a fair trial. It should help you.

Take Cardui.

Furunculosis

Furuncles or pimples together with their little darker brothers, comedones or blackheads, decorate the faces of altogether too many people, young and middle aged, women as well as men.

Through pinching squeezing their pus-producing organisms are sometimes forced into the venous circulation. The blood stream may then carry them to other organs or tissues of your body, where they may do serious harm.

This may sound rather unimportant, as the majority of people regard squeezing a pimple or two a morning exercise with no consequence. But you may some day have a condition for which you cannot account. It may be a serious infection, causing you much pain and suffering.

Their presence is usually the sign of your skin. If the pimple is a deeply lowered bodily resistance. Perhaps your diet is not evenly balanced, containing too high a percentage of carbohydrates, such as vegetables, starch and sugar. If your skin is naturally oily, you may be forcing this unnatural suppurative condition by eating too much of energy or fat-forming foods. Carelessness in bathing or allowing the pores to become clogged by lack of proper exercise or free perspiration, may also encourage pimples.

To get rid of pimples, try the following treatment:

Do not squeeze, pinch or puncture them. A mild, simple ointment or a zinc ointment should be smeared on them to cause a gradual drying up or ripening of the pustules. When ripe open carefully with a sharp sterile instrument. This will result in a small scar which may eventually disappear.

Be careful not to cut or scratch them. Their presence is usually the sign of your skin. If the pimple is a deep-

Primitive Broadcasting Outfit Rivals Radio

South American Indian Signal Drum

THERE is nothing new under the sun!

Just when the world is agog over radio, the Mulford Biological Exploration brings back from the jungles of South America a great signal drum, with which the natives were able to broadcast messages a distance of four days' journey. The drum has recently been turned over to the Museum of the American Indian, New York.

A regular telegraphic code, centuries older than the Morse code, is used by the aborigines. By means of it they are able to keep their brethren up the rivers fully informed as to the approach of enemies or explorers. The drum is cunningly carved from a log of hard wood, and suspended in such a way that the maximum vibration is obtained.

Three members of the Mulford Biological Exploration penetrated the wild country of the Tucano Indians, near the Brazil-Colombia frontier, for the purpose of collecting specimens of South American drug plants, and to obtain photographs of the curious ceremonies in which some of them are used. In addition to their success in this, they were able to get pictures of the signal drum in action, and to bring it back with them.

What Does Scriptural Conversion Mean?

What Does Scriptural Service to God Mean?

What Are the Visible Results of Such Service?

A ONE dollar bill and a twenty dollar bill seem the same to a blind man—yet the difference is marked to the man who can see—and it's only a difference in printing. It is the way printing is done and the idea back of it that makes it worth more or less.
